

1-SEPT-2020_the Word of the Lord must be fulfilled

(Spirit helper speaking:)

You have to get away from it, and go to the mountain. Otherwise you get dragged down. Time away will refresh your channel. Open up to the right spirit.

I was a man who knew only too well the drain of the spirit of disbelief. Get away, come away. Time away, I'll take you. Come. Let's go. Where can we meet? Shake off the weight of flesh and take a trip to Heaven. When there is nowhere else to take you, where you won't be noticed, then come.

(Note: I step into some zone in the spirit. I hear words being said... little groups of people.)

(Message continues:)

Yes, they are reading the GNs. They are to make the Word of God occur. To the letter they must act and proceed, for the Word of God must be done. They read the Word, you read the Word, they act on it, you act on it. All living My Word, that is how and then the end will come.

Are you doing it and living it?

Beware that you be not stumbled by fractions of messages in prophecy that seem to contradict the way things turn out. For some things indeed are conditional. But that just means we have to go in for the next lap, to run again and to keep running until all the Word of the Lord has been fulfilled. That means done. How is something fulfilled? It is obeyed and acted on. Yes, some is for God alone to do, the really powerful things. But much or most is for the individuals to live out day by day.

Yes, an angel can tell John the Baptist's parents about the type of son they will have and give a glimpse into his life. But then they have to do the hard work, though weary and old, of raising him right, of teaching him the scriptures, of feeding him, and of finally letting him go, to go out and do what they raised him for. God does what He must, but all God's people have to obey to bring the plan into being.

How did his dad's dumbness, his inability to speak, help in the raising of John the Baptist? He sure watched what he said, that's for sure. And it made him want to pay mighty good attention to the words God spoke, and to believe it. Because if not, bam, that liberty of speech could be removed once again.

And so it is with you, if you don't use your speech, your gift of talking or of typing all to the glory of God, then you just might lose it, to teach you to do things according God's plan. You can do it the hard way or the easy way. But either way God's will will be accomplished. Just whether you have allowed yourself to be a part of the plan, or have chosen to refuse to take part, that is up to you in many ways. It's better to say yes, even if it's hard to actually do the task put before you. But that's so much easier than seeing you have missed a high calling.

Chin up and keep on the offensive.

Endure hardness. You aren't always going to be appreciated. Bear it. Moses wasn't, neither was Elijah. Take the bitter with the sweet, and go on your way, doing as you must.
