(Spirit helper speaking:) I know you are heart broken and it seems almost like it's not real, this state you all are in. It's wild, it's lonely, is unexplainable. You think different, you see things differently, and most of all you are different. Yet, the hand is kept together, all fingers are intact—the five of you still dwelling with one another. You are in a bit of a daze about it all.

But one thing is certain you are going forward, each of you, moving on and choosing to be used as God so ordains.

To whom else will you go, to the world with a million voices, each saying something different; or to the one voice, the One who loves and cares?

Choose this day whom you will serve.

(Jesus speaking:) I know it's hard to be faced with not only a lack of belief, but a not trusting if something is Godly or not; a fear that it's from the ungodly side, and that lumps you in with it. Ouch.

And then you wonder and want to make sure you really are on the clean side. But look at the fruits of those who do not embrace the key power. Are they powerfully serving Me, or are they laid back? What are they using their finances for? Do they know what is truth and what is error, or have they swallowed a whole lot of lies from this world's system? (many church believers)

You cannot serve Me and mammon. You can't embrace the ideas of the world while hoping to be open to new ideas springing out of a fresh new reading of My written word. Be part of the world, or be My ecclesia. You can't play both roles.
