(Question: Lord what do I do about my anger... so very angry that people want to do this to little ones.)

(Jesus speaking:) Anger is good when it's facing the right way. Not at your family or those you are meant to be winning to Me ...But anger, by all means, against the usurper. Be angry and sin not. That is don't step out of line. How else could we fight but if we were angry, really fiercely angry at the wickedness. It's called "wroth" and it's fuel to our fire, and keeps us at them.

But get us to do the deeds of the wroth of God, while you are the face of light to the world. We'll do the fierce moves, and you can be "children of peace" a hand to extend and bring others closer to the light.

And if you want to get out a bit of that pent-up anger, I'll let you into a private room, where you can simulate all the fierce moves you'd like to make against the child devourer. It'll be like a "virtual reality" set up. And you can go at it. This might be helpful for letting off steam. You didn't know I had these places? You thought there was only fruit trees and rivers of life and laughter? Well, when I need you to be a gentle and quite one, yet the spirit of righteous anger still rises up, you can "have a way of escape" and fight the enemy in new and fierce ways. And maybe it'll give some good ideas as to what we'll actually do, when it suits My purpose.

These rooms are never used for simulating fights against brethren. That is rather judged instead (as in, you get punished for that kind of thought)—unless so called "brethren" are really the enemy in disguise.

Remember it's the spirit you are fighting against, not the people that you see. And if you need a "face" to place on the evil spirit, though I like to spare you the rough details as it's not all that beneficial for you to see these things, yet if it helps you to not turn your anger on to people but rather on the "not flesh and blood" principalities that you are fighting, then ask Me for a vision and I'll show you something/ someone you can focus on for your spiritual angry duel, when letting out your feelings of anger against the wicked forces.

I have a room ready. You'd be surprised how often they are used. One is open. You are free to go in and get out your anger on your foe—the child molesters and abusing spirits using bodies as a way to create the sensation of pain on earth, to please their wicked souls.

Those foul ones. Thankfully I won't have to be limited to a simulation, but I get to lead the charge to the real thing, and real pain they will feel, a thousand times over and more than they met out to My darlings, My new creations.

I can see your heart stirred, for you have been fashioned a warrior for the little ones, and it is in your make-up to hate what I too hate. You are like your Father in this, your Heavenly Father. You are learning to love what I love, but you also come equipped to hate what I hate.

So up and fight and show Me that you do hate these despicable ones. Bravery to face these simulations shows Me what you are made of and whose side you are on. Up now and pour out some righteous anger on the foes. I'll mark it for your good. It will be counted righteousness for you.

Arise.
