

11-Jan-2021_a moment today prepped for centuries ago

(Jesus speaking:) Beloved, nothing happens by accident, not even the smallest incidence. You don't know how many prayers might have led up to that one, single and seemingly small event or occurrence.

Everything that happens is going to turn out together for the good of those who love Me. So you can already be praiseful, in advance.

The worst thing you can do, as far as making a so called "bad day" get worse, is to keep a negative outlook on things that happen that aren't in your favour. If you would just start praising God, no matter what happens, you would turn around most cloudy and grumpy days for the better.

Each life is made up of so many teeny occurrences and happenings. There are no "big events" really, as even the seeming big ones—like moving to a new country, or someone dying, or a new child being born, or a life long dream suddenly fulfilled—these are all made up of small steps, small seconds, small heartbeats, small glances with the eyes.

And there are so many, oh so many people that are involved. You never even hear about, nor in this life time ever will know all the zillions of people that make this moment possible that you are living in now.

You'll never get to thank them for all they went through, but you can thank Me at least. Just the fact that you have electricity or food that you didn't grow, or have a working computer, or all that is sustaining your mission, shows a whole lot of people and work went into the prep work way before you came along to enjoy the fruits of other's labours.

(Spirit helper speaking:) The Lord knew you were going to need this right at this moment, and He and a Host of others have been working long and hard, for centuries, on making things what they needed to be, for you, right now. —And for them in the past as well. It's all been a work of love and God's providence, all to bring about a very special story and example and lesson. All parts have had to work together for good, so that you can do your job here today.

It's no good if God has work for people to do, but nothing that they need has been made available. God's been on the job for longer than you realise, getting things all set up. So praise Him! And enjoy the benefits. Even if you are having a hard time seeing them on some days, as the costs seem to outweigh the benefits that you are hoping for, praise anyway, for a lot has gone into this moment. Okay?

Enjoy it and praise your way through it. And remember too, that if there are some mixed up moments, and you can't quite figure out why something has befallen you, there's a half a chance that it has little to do with you, right now, but something that is laying ground work for some other future happening, either involving you, or for someone entirely different.
