(Spirit helper speaking:) I'll sit tenderly with you, on this side of the veil, when you come home to your heavenly abode and it's time for the flipside of the tapestry of your life to be revealed. It's a time when all the wrongs will take on the good appearance and were really the needed parts of your life; when your so-called good things, might take on a different appearance. It's when the full and real picture is seen, of how God viewed your life and what it really looks like in the end. Most things will be reversed in that day, and will look completely different than what you thought they were, if you viewed things with the eyes of the world.

If you have constantly tapped into Heaven's view and believed God's take on it, then there won't be as many "revelations" and things that totally surprise you about the way you saw your life.

It's a time when the good effects will be revealed. It's a day of inner healing, and great joy for the faithful servants.

But just because something feels and looks good and seems right to the carnal mind's way of seeing things, doesn't mean it really is that way on this side of the veil—the side that matters.

It will be the day of revelation, and I'll show it to you, unfolding the beauties, wiping away the tears, holding you through the moment. And then you'll meet with the Master to find out what happens next as a result; what is your "cup" you'll be served for the next part of life.

I'll tell you things tenderly, and you'll be glad to see things fully in Heaven's way at last. We can rejoice in the good, and how the bad turned to good, and see clearly what you still must learn. And you'll be glad to work your way through whatever He has for you to learn next.

It'll all make good and perfect sense then, and most of all you'll be glad for wanting to see things with Heaven's view while there, as that gave you the most clues about what choices to make that will make you eternally thankful.
