More from the “Seeds of David”: A Babe again—hunger for God’s Word

(Jesus speaking:) Oh, sweet heart I want to nestle you closely to My heart, as you surrender to My embrace. You don’t have to worry what to eat—spiritually that is—because I have all the best foods ready for you. I have just what you need. I’ve worked for many years in advance, so that you, today, would have what you need; whatever would aid you and tool you for the mission at hand, and for fighting the foes at hand.

Just come to Me and let me nourish your soul, with stored up grains, with fresh new words in prophecy, with songs that stir you to greater and constant devotion, through testimonies of the Word working, and more.

It’s like the parable of the feast, “all things are ready” and all that is lacking yet is the guests. I can’t make them come, but I can prepare and invite. Come to My table and feast, as much as you can. Then you will have whatever you need for the battles at hand.

Even more carefully than you thought out the children’s food needs, so do I plan out your spirit’s needs. You are as My baby, whom I wish to nourish all the days of your life. Hunger helps you come to the table, doesn’t it? So, sometimes a bit of exercise and hard work builds up that hunger. So that’s why not all days, and all day long, can only be one fun thrilling activity after the next, or you just don’t get hungry enough, and then you lack the spiritual stamina and strength that you need. Your health will go down, while you think all is fine as you are laughing. You don’t want to laugh yourself to death, spiritually, due to malnutrition, while you just engage in so called pleasures.

So if things are tough, or you have a job to do that takes some effort, maybe it’s to build up a good hunger in your soul so you can feed on the right foods that will give your heart the strength, and your mind the resilience it needs.

Ask Me to make sure you are taking in the right spiritual diet. I love you and want to sup with you, as that passage in Revelation says. And as I said in the book of John to My disciples who had been fishing all night, “Come and dine.”
