(Jesus speaking:) I said I would give you houses and land, that these were some of the rewards for giving all for Me. Remember also the midwives who helped save the lives of many children living in Egypt in the time of Moses and the Israelites working for Pharaoh, it says that I “made them houses”.

Exodus 1:21 And it came to pass, because the midwives feared God, that he made them houses.

So what is a house? Well, to get the proper meaning you have to zoom far away from your planet’s way of doing things. A house in your frame of mind is little more than a box. But My people throughout history rarely lived in these types of structures. When did they move into something that resembled the “houses and lands” that are a part of society these days? –When they took over the land, the land where the evil ones dwelt.

(Deuteronomy 6:10-13)

These ones built houses of stone and whatnot. The evil ones had established themselves and thought they could never be moved. They thought if they built a very strong structure to live in that it would make them unmoveable.

Whereas My children of faith rarely dwelt in anything that couldn’t be moved. They had flocks to care for and thus had to be on the move to keep them well fed, and to be at peace with those living in the area. It was their ability to more easily move that was in fact their protection and ability to have the provision that was needed.

So back to the topic of what is a house? –Think more along the lines of household. What is a house for after all but to house and care for your household; the people that are placed with you and are given to you to care for.

A family is more of an accurate description of what the term “house” came to mean to those living their lives in the ancient days.

Why did people need people? To survive, usually. You also need and crave companionship, teachers, instructors, and little ones who need you and like to learn from you. These are needs. You need the skills and abilities of others to help you do whatever you are there in this world to do.

I want each one to be housed just right. But that doesn’t mean a physical, unmoveable, solid structure, but each one to be placed in a household that both cares for them and that is benefited by them. Together, a team that is right for one another, is both stronger because of being together, as well as happier too.

But as a perk, I also do give you pleasant places to live in, usually built by others in the world—just like My children in the past occupied such as well. And I prepare lovely dwelling places to house both you and your spiritual family, those you can get along well with and who will help each other as well, in the next part of your learning, when you come where? –To “the Father’s house”. What? He only has one big massive building for all to cram in? No, to His house, His family, His team, to be at last there with the family you were born again into.

Who will be your brothers and sisters, uncles and aunts, elders, motherly women, nieces and nephews, cousins, and so forth? If you have been born again and are part of “the Father’s House” then you will have all these loving and interesting relations to dwell with, according to the Father’s choosing.

He places the solitary in families. And when each soul is born anew, and has received the loving gift of salvation, then they are a part of a smaller family team—that is part of the larger, everyone team. Who you will live with and learn with and work with when living in the “house of the Lord” will be a surprise in many ways. But it’s all for the purpose of nurturing you, caring for you, and giving you interesting people to live and to learn with; and who will enable you to do your next calling and mission.

So be as the midwives, and bring souls into the Kingdom of God—helping new ones to be born again and be kept alive. And you will have a wonderful place in “My Father’s House”. Those who have raised many new ones on Earth, new souls born into God’s big family, will have the largest teams up there. So many will wish to speak with them, comfort them after their Earth struggles, give to them, after they gave up all for Me while on Earth. Those souls who are indebted to the one who probably forsook, at some point, their own flesh and blood relatives in order to bring home to Heaven some of God’s lost children, will pay back in many ways their “love debt” to these ones faithful to God.

Great then will be the rejoicing in that day for the lost who were found and now have a place in the Father's house—in His family that stretches far and wide and takes over the world and beyond.

Be faithful, and love, joy, serenity, and all good things will abide with you in the world and realm you will get to explore and abide in.

And if you don't have much of a "house" here and now, as in a place to call your own, or much of a family around you that lives the life of faith, realise that this is not your final destination. You aren't home. You are a pilgrim of faith, on a pilgrimage to the place that is being prepared for you. —Not only dwelling quarters, but the people and family themselves are also being prepared. And one day when you all meet up, each one needing the companionship and love and reassurance of each other, you will feel you have "come home". Your very need for plenty of love and joy will mean you all try to give it to each other. A home of hearts is what it will be, filled with My love, the love of Jesus that passes all understanding. It will be a sea of love you get to swim in, when the faithful and those true to the cause of their Lord and Maker, arrive home.

Oh, you should see some of the celebrations that are thrown when a new member of a heavenly family team at last arrives. They have prepared for the coming of the new member, and have prepared all the things that they really enjoy.

And there is a database kept in the archives of Heaven, with details of each of these special events, so that others wishing to create the best welcome party can get ideas from, should they also wish to replicate that style of celebration. For example, if there are two souls who were very close on Earth, and they would most likely enjoy much the very same style of welcoming, then it's easy for those planning the celebration to do so. It's all documented and recorded to the detail. —For all is approved of by the "head of the household" —Me, their Lord and Saviour, who knows indeed what each one would most enjoy.

Okay, darling ones, walking in this trouble filled world, there is lots of joy around the corner. I'll see to it that there is. Walk now for Me, and I'll house you well when you arrive home, for I love you.
