

23-FEB-2021_to shape and reshape you

(Speaking in almost a husky voice, or like English was not his native tongue.)

(Romanio, the architect:)

I'm here to shape you, for the Master has called for a change here and a change there. What I did while on Earth helps grant me my station in the realm of the supernatural. Now with tools that I never could use before, so do I wield and bring shape and design and form to create living tools to be used by God to do a certain job or mission. And then comes the reshaping as well, when a given task is complete and the vessel is willing to go on and to keep being used.

So what will I help create out of you? I look you over as you stand there. You turn, and I see all sides to you, and I sketch out designs to present to Jesus. I see the blueprints of the pattern that I am to fit you for. I do have limitations of what I can and can not do with the material that is before me; for the Master has given you a certain amount to work with and perimeters in your life, and these I must work within.

There are many tools that I can use, some hurt more than others. But the tools are chosen according to a person's personality, their history, and even more importantly what their future will look like, for tools shape what the future form will be, in the life of a willing companion to Jesus. What type of tool is used and how it feels about the changes and how they occurred will shape what happens next.

It's not a light matter, but one to be done with precision, and great care.

So what will I suggest to be chipped away from your heart, mind and spirit, so that you are retooled and fit for work for the Master in the next bend of the journey?

I'm jotting notes and drawing shapes. I guess you'll find out.

And like you guessed it from the sound of my name, near to the English word "Romance" so is something related to feelings and love in a romantic sense, often used to shape the soul and actions and reactions of a mate to the King of kings.

So don't be all that surprised if love knocks on your door when you were least expecting it. It's all about what will make you into the vessel most needed, or make you do what is best for the time right now. And as you know, love isn't all rosy and gem-filled, but a lot of work and sometimes more pain than gain, as your dear heart has experienced.

Stay open to what changes might come your way, changes in actions and in feelings. For these will greatly affect what comes next. And if you are doing just what your commander and Lord is bidding of you, no matter how you feel, then the change is a good change and is making you learn and grow and be transformed into something perfectly suited for the mission at hand.

Some changes and chipping and shaping takes years and years; though some can come about rather quickly. Both are good and effective—that is if you keep yielding yourself to the King and keep pressing on to be and do what is most needed at the time, caring little about what is "you" but caring more about "being for Him what He most needs and desires."
