

25-Nov-2021_the grand prize

(Angelic guide speaking:) Sweet dear, I know it's a struggling challenge to keep on, slog after slog, when the weights are on you; the pressures are on you to do all you need to.

But look up, because there's some healing coming right from Heaven, down in a stream of light to refresh you and get you to stand up right and walk on with renewed vigor.

You are not alone; we all are walking this lonely pathway of total surrender to Jesus, along with you. In fact we have planned much of what comes into your life and day to get you to keep saying "yes" to the one you have committed yourself to.

Sweet darling, just a bit more and you'll fall happily into the arms of Your Redeemer. He'll succor you for eternity.

He's calling all to come in closer, to reach out more to Him, and then they'll get the grand prize of His loving arms bearing them up and relieving them of all their weights and troubles from their Earth experience.

Beautiful darling, we are dancing around you and teaching you how to dance through the landmines and explosions on this side and on that. Around them we go, and we spin you up high into the air, to fly over some of the painful demonic tribulations that the enemy tried to get you with. But you yield to our dancing moves and you are spared and fly above and float down on the other side of some evil. And on we go.

Dance with me—which means there will be something that needs dance over and around. You are not at the goal yet, so there will be more sweat, and yes tears. But keep dancing to the music that the Heavenly choir streams down to you and sings to uplift you with.

I hold you tightly and snuggly to my bosom. Yes, sometimes a lump comes to my throat as I know the feelings you will be hit with. But let's get through this for eternity; for the everlasting good that is coming.

Be wise and stay mighty close so that we can conduct you through.