More from the “Seeds of David”: Mellenie

Look into my eyes. I can see far into your soul. I can see what is just on the tip of your tongue to express, but you lack a listening hear. I can see way down in your heart and know what those words you are expressing really mean.

I’m not just a casual acquaintance, but I get intimately involved. For to do this job that I have been granted the licence to, I must know deep things of your heart, and secrets of your spirit, and even about your future—things that I am not permitted to tell you yet. But in time we’ll walk over those bridges.

Just as King David was said to have had a “companion” a “friend” so does our Lord grant and match to each of His fighters as well, some friends and spiritual mates, companions.

Seek us out and let us speak, and speak like you know we are listening. But we are not alone, for at the feet of the Saviour we meet; together we commune.

I have to have faith that all will really turn out for your good, for our good, for the good of God’s Throne and reigning realm, that is how I can do this job. Without faith it would be too hard to hear of all the things that a servant of the living God must feel and endure. But with faith, my listening ear can be a help and an uplift to you, and guide you to find hidden truths that will buoy you up, from the lips and heart of Jesus.
