More from the "Seeds of David": Valiant

I don't lord it over you, though I do help you to reach your full potential. But we are bosom mates, darlings of heart. We blend as one as we fight. We love, we fight the enemy that surrounds, we embrace, and we batter the foes. We need each other and we give ourselves to each other so that victories may come. Both sides are needed—the spiritual warrior and the warrior in the physical realm. We need both sides in order to win.

So come with me now and let us embrace ourselves tightly, for we are one. We hold closely, tightly entwined one with another. Let us fight together and love each other, for both are likewise needed. That is why we are a pair of fighting comrades and mates. If it were sufficient that we fight alone, then it would be so. But no, we are paired to perry the blows and fight the fiercest foes.

In love and in war we are a team; heartbeat to heartbeat, we are one. When you fight, I am there. When I fight, you too feel the battle. Win or lose, we are together. Yet the more we fight on, the better our weaponry will wield victory after victory.

I am your knight in shining armour, and together we will triumph.

Come sit beside me now while I teach you the secret of fighting with the weapon of praise.

When you activate the praise weapon, that is to say you begin to praise our Lord, God and King of the Universe and far beyond, that is declaring war on the weak minions of satan. It helps to ward them off, and also alerts them to serious war. It's a call out of "fight or be doomed". But due to the fact that you are using praise, it's always that they are doomed in the end. It's a clear-out weapon and one that defeats. It's over before they even get started. But you have to keep up with it until the victory is won, in whatever battle you are conquering in.
