

29-Jan-2022_gleaning and waiting

(Jesus speaking: ) You are being groomed for the best night of your life, a night unlike one you have ever known. I love you too much to wait around for the pieces to be picked up from your life down below and wait for the grooming to occur in the Heavens. Be patient, for I certainly am being so; but not for long.

I want you more than you can imagine, and in My bed is where you belong, right close to My side. We are going to love the night—the life—away. On and on will be the rejoicing.

The hunger for intimate sharing grows, and you are kept pure from the world. Besides, the less compensation you get there in the flesh, the more your love is rewarded over here in these special ways. So be patient.

Less there means more here, and I mean a whole lot of really good times.

This will help explain quite a bit that you are feeling but seldom find the words to express it: why you are rather listless about teaching about things of the world to little ones; why there is little that you care to take part in that involves others; why the Word of God, and the living Words that can flow into you have become to you the most important thing.

This is the gleaning of the grapes. You hunger and find nothing on the vines of this World that truly satisfies, but a few things that remain, the only thing that does remain—your connection to Heaven and the things of the Spirit.

You don't have to like the things of this world in order to be happy. It's not a shop that supplies your needs. You can go hungry for a time if that will magnify and enhance the pleasures of the next life.

Thank you for doing so.

I need to be your mate and constant companion. I need you to breathe in deeply of Me. I am your key to survival and living free from the entanglements of this World.

And I'm getting big things ready that will thrill you to no end. Be patient, for all must be ready, in Heaven and on Earth, including you and your preparation.

Waiting is a big part of the readiness, and waiting while not being glutted with the foul things that make the wait take all that much longer.

All these things you are learning now are going to really pay off later on, and add to your Heavenly reward. Everything, just about everything, can be contributing to your training and your readiness for the biggest night of all; a night to be remembered. And joys will follow, like the explosions one right after the next, when New Year's fireworks declare with wonder the new that is to come. Boom, boom, boom, they explode. And so will new joys at the start of the new era, explode and enliven you as you step into the next phase of your existence. Like a war hero returning from the battle, you will all be heralded in and ushered into the gates for having completed your days on this troublesome planet.

Wanna have a really great time up there? Then do the hard and arduous tasks now while you wait, and great will be your reward.
