

6-Dec-2021_living and learning_Pt 2

(6-Dec-2021_living and learning_Pt 1)

(Spirit helper speaking: ) Much the same as your lessons will be in the next realm when you get up to Heaven, are your lessons here and now. You do have trainers and teachers to help you and try to prepare you for whatever is coming up around the corner, so you can be ready. Many times you miss learning this and that, due to circumstances and the situation you might find yourself in, so they have to try and work this or that lesson or learning topic into the next situation you are in. It will take on a different form and use different “learn aids” or people; or look very different, but like using different aids in a school to teach the same thing, so is it.

Perhaps if you had learned as a child to do such and such, you would have been better equipped and able to face and manage something later on. But if that was missed, due to whatever reason, you then might learn it later, but the actual circumstance will be vastly different. It may seem like you skipped learning something, but in reality, you still are going to learn it, just using different means to do so.

But if, after being given lots of new opportunities to learn the same things, you keep putting it off and just won't learn what you are meant to learn, it only makes it harder for you. Like if you never wanted to learn to communicate with others, but to stay in your own little world, there would be lots of things you'd miss out doing because of it. So you have to do the hard work of learning a language, and then learning how to speak politely or in ways that people can both understand you and want to listen to you. Then you go on to saying meaningful things and using the gift of speaking and writing to bring the right kind of knowledge to people, and not use it to manipulate for selfish means or for commanding action in ways that aren't good.

Oh, there is so very much to learn about 'learning while on Earth'. But listen to your guides for they will help you learn things as quickly as is possible and in ways that you will benefit from the most. Oh, they could use all sorts of ways and means to get you to learn this or that, but the benefits you get out of them would vary, or be next to nothing. The job would be done, but you might be in a messed up state for having to go through whatever it took to be taught that lesson.

So submit to your guides; let Jesus teach you through their kind efforts, and then when you do get up to the Heavenly realm ready to learn what is next, you'll sail through many of the tougher courses, as you have passed those grades while on Earth.