(Jesus speaking:) Soak in the seeds My love, like the wick soaks in the oil and thus can it shine and burn without being consumed. Soak—that is to say fill your thoughts with My Word seeds. When you read, many times over, the new fresh and alive living words spoken to your soul, this fills your thoughts. When you ask, as often as you can—as if you have nothing else of value to do—for new and more words, like a hungry virgin eager to be laid, so will I come into you.

Why the symbol of “virgin”? Because they are desirous and yet choosy, saving themselves for the best. Though hungry, they keep themselves for only what is best.

I will fill you time and again and you shall not want. My rod and staff shall comfort you time and again. I will lead you into green and living pastures where you will feed and come to life again and again, no matter how many blows you are met with. I sustain your life.

Though you pass through experiences that seem like death to you, and the past is buried, yet I take you through and up and over and out and on to new horizons. There’s joy in the near future that you know not of. Just keep smiling through the vale, the mountain top will bring a gorgeous view.
