--Peace and grace be unto you. Purity and truth be poured out, and let the praises of the Loving King be always on your lips and ringing in your heart. Through song, darling, you do this best. Be a song player, singing His praises in all that you do. ... Praise though you sing alone; sing though you praise alone. And the choir will back you up and be singing right along with you.

--Praise His name for saving and redeeming me. His name be honoured forever. Open your channel to receive new stories, for this brings you great joy. And in joy is strength. Take time daily to receive a story down from the Spirit of God. It is through this channel that you rise above the trivial aspects of living a lowly life. If your head is filled with Heaven's new pictures, then you will be lifted up and not drained of joy as easily.

-- Be still, be still and know the Lord thy God. This is how you conquer. It is not in feverish worry and pointless activity. Be still. Be still in your heart. Let your mind take in the elixirs of the Almighty, for these do have sustaining power. It is through the empowerment that comes in the stillness that you are empowered to endure and to persevere. Be still and let the arms of Jesus encircle you, empower you, and pull you through. You need not think of the future and how you are to manage, for that pertains to Jesus the King. Just do right now as He is bidding. That is all.

-- I fill your heart with goodness; treasured goodness. I keep out that which would foul and darken it, or break it in all the wrong ways. When your heart is hungry—or sad and lonely is another way to put it—then I seek to find those things that it should and could be filled with. I bring treasure from far and near. Like the ships that brought gold and good things to kings, so do I see that good things are brought right to you. —Things you have harvested from internet sources, or from friends, good nourishment that has fed your soul and buoyed you up. You have oodles of resources stocked up to share with others. I see you like to stock up honey to share as well. We all do. We like to feed and gather to feed, and keep the good preserved. You guarded the hearts of your young ones and you didn't like anything heart-corrupting to enter. Like bees guard their young, so do we guard the hearts and minds of those we are sent to protect.
